

teleskopy.pl

Watch glass $\varnothing = 90$ mm Application (for Wikipedia.org) A clock glass is a kind of laboratory glassware, shaped like a round section of the sphere. The glass crystal is mainly used in laboratories: $\hat{\text{€}}\text{€}$ as a basis for performing simple, drop chemical tests $\hat{\text{€}}\text{€}$ as a base for other types of experiments - for example for observing solubility or crystallization $\hat{\text{€}}\text{€}$ as a lid for beakers and crystallizers $\hat{\text{€}}\text{€}$ as a kind of weighing bottles for weighing small amounts of loose substances. / below: photos of three sizes of slides: 45, 60 and 90 mm /